

Together we can shape the future of health and science.

A pledge to fight for you.

"together we can shape the future of health and science."

As my slogan suggests, only together can we push for the changes to truly help ourselves and others in our learning. Only through the collecting of all our thoughts, can we provide the university with the knowledge of what it does right and wrong in teaching.

What I have also found is that, sometimes, regardless of intent, the university can make it hard to find out what your lecturers are doing outside of teaching. For the two sport science courses, they have started a newsletter that is released 3 times a year to help students keep up-to-date with their lecturers.

One of the greatest assets I think the university can give you is PAC. "The role of the PAC is to support your transition to University life and be a point of contact throughout your time at the University of Suffolk, helping you to achieve your goals." This is a great service and really should be pushed out for a greater number of students as the advice and support of your lecturers who only want you to succeed.

Having been a course rep for the last year and half for sport performance analysis, I understand the powerful role that students can have on impacting decision making around the biggest and smallest ideas.

What I promise for you:

1. To use the school council and the student forums as a place to push the school of allied health and science to the next level
2. To raise any concern that can be successfully fought for and changed, to the greatest extent of my ability.
3. To push for more news articles / newsletters from a wider array of courses for the students to keep track of what their lecturers are doing outside of teaching.
4. Push for a greater notice of PAC and how it can help you.
